

I wish for the FCC to not allow the petition by the CBA to allow unlimited calls from businesses consumers already have a prior relationship with. I do not have a regular home phone and allowing these calls would charge me an additional fee per call.

THE only unsolicited calls that should be tolerated should be those referring to security issues, such as a possible stolen card. If I am interested in products and services beyond that from any institution I will solicit the information myself.